“ A friend of mine wrote this to me and I thought I'd share:

The Gift.

When you went to see your Aunt on your last visit with her you took time away from your busy schedule and your life to spend good quality time with her. That was a gift.

When you talked with her and listened to her tell you about the life she had, the thoughts and memories she shared with you while surrounded by her family and loved ones, your listening to her was your gift.

You were given what so few people in this life are given; the chance to be with and laugh with someone that mattered so much to you and your family before taking the final trip. That was the universes gift.

Sharing her love and letting you know how special you were to her was a treasure you will always have. And the lesson that a sunset is just as beautiful as a sunrise in its own way... that was her gift.

So many gifts were exchanged in the end. I hope you know and cherish how lucky you were to have what you had in her, not just in her last visit, but in her life.

We should all be so lucky.

Aunt Dot, thank you for the gifts, the love and your kindness. I will love and cherish always your gifts. You will be loved and missed by many, especially me.
