“ My friend, my rock, husband I miss you. if I could have one more minute with you I would hold your hand for you not to go or for me to go with you...

I am hurting with each step that I take on this "new" lonely road. I don't know how to exist without you. Logic tell me what I need to do but feelings, emotions and my love stand on the way of my reasoning...

“ A friend

My friend, my rock... You gave the best of you unconditionally. Your kindness had no limits. Your love for others have no boundaries. Your word was your signature and a hand shake was your seal. Humble in every way. You were never concern with the material things in life, your worries involved the well being of others. A few took the time to know you and because of it they learn the meaning of friendship and loyalty.

Of all the people that you met, I am the luckiest one! I got the opportunity to know the friend and the great man that you were and still are. You were a wonderful husband, a fantastic father and a great friend.

I am mad! Before you, I knew how to live and do everything on my own. Then you came along. You lived and did everything for me and now you are leaving me.

I am being selfish in not wanting to say good-bye. So, I will not say good-bye, I will see you later. You will always be in my heart.
