“ Karen never met a stranger.... always a big smile on her face.... I met her many years ago in Alvin. She had given birth to Nathan, and my sister-in-law was a good friend, but was ill, and she had me deliver the baby gift... Karen was waiting outside and said, "Please come in and see my beautiful baby boy." She was glowing, and looked like a movie star. It was so long ago. I think I was intimidated and did not go in. I felt like I was at the plantation "Tara" and a young Hollywood actress (Angelica Huston) was inviting me into her mansion. She was a delight at Neiman Marcus, as she worked beside her best friend Marilyn. I could hear Karen's laughter, and I worked 2 isles over in cosmetics.

The last time I saw Karen, was at my Mother's funeral in Henderson.

Karen loved her daughter and son. That's what I remember most. There will only be one Karen B., as she was unique in every way. Just knowing she's gone, is such sadness. She will be missed.
