“ You've been weighing on my heart a lot here lately... I miss you more than I ever thought possible. I hope that wherever you are, you're happy and at peace. I could use your words of wisdom, but I'll take a shooting star instead. Rest easy, my friend. I love you to the Moon and back x10. ★★ ★

“ Eight ago I walked into THD and there was that bright smile. Always goofy and full of love and laughter. So glad to have seen you this past year. I rember your 23 hour marathon on the reach during inventory. I considered you one of my babies. Find Peace in Heaven and throw something from Heaven so that we know you are thinking of us. Love you always Kyle. God has other plans for you right now

“ From the time I was 9 until the time I was 17, you were my constant. I'll never forget the first time I laid eyes on that square jaw and cleft chin. Bottle cap thick glasses, and a crooked grin - you were completely different from anyone I'd ever known. When I look back over those years of my life, I realize the reason I hurt so deeply from this loss is because you were a true half of my heart. We shared so many memories, so much laughter, so many stories, so many secrets, so many truths, and so many quiet nights out on your trampoline with Anthony looking up at the stars. Orion's Belt was always our constellation. He always guided us when we needed him, and now he's guided you home. I know deep in my heart that you're up there with him and God. The protectee has now become the protector. So when I need guidance, I'll not only look to God and Orion, but to you as well. Thank you for not only being one of the best friends I've ever had, but also the sweetest younger brother any girl could ever ask for.

“ Kyle you will be missed so much by so many. You touched a lot of lives and I don't think you realize it. I remember our days at Lemmon when you used to run from lumber and come and pick me up and spin me in a circle and then go about your business like nothing had even happen. You scared me everytime because I didn't see it coming. It was so good to see you that one last time at the gas station just two months ago. I believe God put us in that same spot at the same time for us say our goodbyes we just didn't know it was goodbye at the time. I will see you again one day and I want one of those good hugs you give. Love you so much Kyle!! To Bethany and Janice you are in my prayers. If yall need anything do not hesitate to ask. Keep your head up and stay strong. He is in a way better place. He would want yall to be happy for him not to mourn. Love you guys!!

“ Kyle was one of the most caring people I've ever met. He didn't see race or anything else..... All he saw was character and once he took to you, you knew he had your back. At Conway he showed me a lot during my time there and we just connected from there on. I'll miss him dearly!!! RIP
