“ Paul was my cousin and also my buddy . He was 8 years older than I was and when I was younger he would invite me to come and do things with him . One year I was probably about 12 he invited me to go to the Texas state fair with him . Of course I accepted the invitation without any hesitation. Come to find out we were riding a school bus to the fair full of students from the high school since my uncle Mack was driving . I wish I could tell everyone the true stories that came from that trip but over the years i have heard him tell his rendition of the trip so many times I'm not sure what the true story really is any more . But it definitely wasn't the way he told it . No matter it was a fun trip as you can imagine and another page of the stories he would tell over the next 30 years about some of the adventures we had .No matter what we did he would always come out looking like a saint , when he would stay the night at our house I would end up on the floor and his butt would be in my bed , I'm sure he told some story to my mom about how hard he had worked that week . I wish I could tell everything we did but half of it he either swore me to never talk about i have forgotten it . He was always so good to me and would never let you worry about him. Of all the things he did that is the only thing that really aggravated me . He was so tough and so stubborn and no matter how he felt he always said he was do great . I talked to him just a few days before he passed and I asked him how he was doing and I should have know his answer would be doing good , everything is fine how bout y'all ! Dang it Paul I hope you know how much you meant to everyone , and the joy and inspiration you were to so many people . We love you buddy and I promise you are greatly missed !
