“ What sweet days of the past.... I remember Mr. Hale as strict, someone else mentioned that as well, and possessing a dry sense of humor.(I was usually too scared to catch the humor though). Khakis, his,easy chair and Archie Bunker are all fond memories. His eyes of blue could scare you to death or melt your heart. Thinking of all of you at this time.

“ Mr. Hale...my best friend's dad. Probably the most strict father of all my friends. There were rules at his house and you better follow them. A few that I remember are...do not sit in his chair.. ever!! If I was picking Lacy or Claudia up, I could not honk the horn for them. He did not like horn blowing. You better not park behind his truck and block him in...this was a no no. He was all bark and no bite. Most of our friends were a little scared of him, but for some reason he liked me. I knew he was really a funny and gentle soul especially after he had grandkids. He softened up as he got older. If Rex liked you, he would offer you a beer. If he gave you a buckeye or an arrowhead, he loved you. I carry his buckeye in my purse for good luck. He also dug up part of an umbrella plant and shared it with me 24 yrs ago. I've moved 3 times and I dig it up and take it with me every time. Just a symbol of how much he means to me. He was a respected man who worked hard to provide for his family. The last 5-7 yrs of his life weren't easy as he and the family dealt with his dementia. Such a struggle for such a strong willed man especially after losing Ann, the love of his life. No more struggle Mr. Hale...you have a new body and mind and you are back with your love. You will always be a memory that I treasure. Rest in peace.
