“ I think all of Betsy’s friends, including me, had a crush on Roddy.. He certainly did not return our interest. It was such a big house, and we could hide hoping to “run into him.” Betsy thought why??! You are crazy. The rocking horse, parakeets, and ice cream!

“ Roddy was the first boy to ever tell me he love me. we were probably six years old and playing in his backyard. There was a marble picnic table with benches there, and Ronnie took a hammer and wacked off a corner of that table. It was at that point that he made his proclamation of devotion. Well, I wasn’t so young that I didn’t get excited about that, but it wasn’t but a few days later at school when he asked for the return the corner of the chunk of marble. That was also the first time when I found out that love comes and goes.
What a wonderful fellow he was, and I suspect still is. It’s.

“ Betsy,
I remember when Roddy had better things to do than hang around with we girls, so we liked to tease him. He'd get tired of us and "disappear." Know you'll miss a Big Brother.

“ So sorry to hear about Roddy. I always liked him and enjoyed being his friend. Roddy was liked by everyone. I am proud to have been his high school classmate.

“ I loved to dance with Roddy at the house parties we went to sometimes when we were in junior high and high school. He was a wonderful dancer and a kind person, and he was taller than I was, which was very important in those days. I also recall taking ballet and tap-dancing classes from his mother when I was younger. That was a great experience as well.

“ Sincere sympathy to the family. We called him Roddy to school, and we graduated with the HHS class of 1960.
